

Buckaloons Recreation Area

Finding the area: Buckaloons Recreation Area rests on the site of a former Indian village, on the banks of the Allegheny River. Take U.S. Route 6 west from Warren, PA. Buckaloons is just south of the intersection of U.S. Routes 6 and 62, about six miles from Warren. An on-line map of this recreation area is available.

Facilities: Buckaloons offers 51 family campsites, each containing a picnic table, fire ring, and grassy tent site. Several sites have charcoal grates. There are flush toilets, a pressurized water system, and a dump station. There are electrical hookups on 15 sites. In a separate area, you'll find a children's play area, a 15-unit picnic area, and a concrete boat launch. Dead and down wood may be used as firewood.

Rates, Fees, Dates

Reservations

Other features: The Buckaloons Seneca Interpretive Trail, named for the Seneca Indian tribe that once lived here, circles the entire recreation area. It is one mile long. An on-line map of this trail is available.

Brought to you as a public service of Pennsylvania Super Trails on Pa-Conservation.Org